I will be going through the different advantages of walkaround boats have to offer. We have written about center consoles before so do checkout the boat alert blog.

What is a Walkaround Boat?

A walkaround boat is a kind of watercraft with an open deck on top, allowing them to be used as fishing boats, pleasure crafts and other similar types of craft. The term “walkaround” comes from the fact that the deck is designed to be walked in all directions without using a separate bridge or cabin to protect against adverse weather conditions or the spray from the sea. A walkaround boat, often called a walkaround cuddy, is a fishing boat with a small cabin (a cuddy cabin) with 360-degrees of fishability, thanks to an unobstructed passway around the boat from the stern at the back to the bow at the front.

Walkaround boats are diverse

Common uses of A walkaround boat

A Walkaround boat is not only for fishing but is also a great leisure watercraft. These days because of the number of families with children that are in need of a little extra room on the boat, this makes the walkaround one of the biggest sellers out there. The versatility and flexibility with the walkaround allows everyone to spread out, fish or just sit and enjoy the scenery. GREAT FOR Saltwater Fishing and Day Cruising. Walkaround boats are primarily fishing boats, and the design will place a priority on an efficient, open cockpit in the rear of the boat with a deck that’s easy to clean, livewell and bait well, rod and tackle storage, and fishing and navigation electronics at the helm. The smallest walkaround models, from 18 to 22 feet, will have a cabin with room for just a berth and a portable toilet.

- Day cruising
- Overnight stays
- Water sporting activities

Larger sized walkaround boats

As walkaround models get larger, they can become more versatile, with room for seating and even a galley for entertaining in the cockpit, a larger cabin, and a padded sunlounge above the cabin in the bow area, all of which mean the walkaround can double as a fishing boat and a family cruiser. The largest walkaround models have space for a cabin with stand-up headroom, a full galley, an enclosed head (the bathroom), and the cruising range and capability for adventure on big water and the open ocean.
